I. INTRODUCTION

The competition is getting complicated caused by technology development and globalization. It makes the organization effort to create the competitive advantage, specialities in order to the company keeps going on. If the company doesn’t want to left behind, doing the change is something must be done [11]. When the company orientation to establish organizational culture, it takes human resources aspect in strategic position through the leader or manager to keep behavior norm, moral value and firm belief. The substance in organization habits are conviction and adaption [9]. The conviction consists of value that is slogan, motto, basic assumption, general purpose of the company, trade philosophy or the principle of the trade. Meanwhile, adaptation is found the rule or norm in groups, also organization adaptation to environment alteration.

The strong habit is signed by the main values of organization that held on and agreed extensively. The more members of organization get the main values, their commitment is getting bigger to the value. Then organizational habit is getting stronger [11]. Integration to the purpose will create bond, loyalty and organizational commitment. This condition can reduce employee willingness to leave organization.

a. Predictors (constant), the culture of organization

From the determination coeffient Result above (R2), it is gotten 7.1 percent. It means 7.1 percents of dependent variable of commitment of organization can be explained by free variable of the culture of organization. The residue 92.9 percent variable of commitment of organization are explained by variables except the variable which is researched. So, it can conclude that there is a few effect of culture of organization in Bank Nagari Branch Padang, but it still has relation both of them.

Robin [5] says that there are 3 ways of process creating the culture. First, the organizer only employs and defend the employees who think and feel some way. Second, they teach and socialize their thinking and feeling. And finally the organizer’s behavior is as role model to support the employees to identify them selves and focus to their belief, value & their assumptions. If the organization get success, the organizers perspective become one. On this point, the organizer’s personality is stuck to the culture of organization.
